

Dual Career support continues in New York

DATE: June 23rd, 2016

On June 9th, Nespresso USA hosted in their Park Avenue office the first 2016 event of the IDCN New York Chapter. The International Dual Career Network (IDCN) helps the partners of relocated employees with their job search. It provides practical information for job seekers in a new country, a networking platform to meet people and exchange ideas, and contact with HR professionals of IDCN member companies and other recruitment professionals.

The theme was “New York Job Market – What You Should Know.” HR Recruiters from major international corporations such as L’Oréal, Danone, Novo Nordisk, as well as Nestlé Waters and Nestlé Nutrition took part. They held workshops focused on: effective resumé writing techniques, impactful communication when networking, targeted job searches, and mastering the interviewing process. Two additional events will take place later this year.

About the International Dual Career Network (IDCN):

IDCN is a global non-profit association founded by Nestlé which comprises companies, NGOs and academic institutions in different locations. Launched in the Lake Geneva region in 2011, IDCN is now present in 12 different cities and is expanding to other locations with a growing number of members. 26 global organizations and almost 75 local entities are now part of the IDCN.
