

Invitation to the IDCN Stockholm Introduction Lunch

Invitation to the IDCN Stockholm Introduction Lunch

Welcome to the new International Dual Career Network in Stockholm!
Join us for an introduction over lunch on January 25, 2017

IDCN Stockholm is about to start its activities in the beginning of 2017 and we would like to invite you to an informative lunch to learn more about the network and how IDCN could be useful for you as an internationally recruiting employer.

Stockholm hosts head offices for quite a few leading global companies and is ranked number 8 in the world in this aspect. Stockholm is also the home for an increasing number of young, fast growing tech companies. Added to that, 17 higher education institutions operate in Stockholm. One challenge for all these is to attract, recruit and keep global talent.

IDCN is a non-profit association formed through the collaboration of companies, academic institutions and organizations with the purpose of facilitating job search for mobile staff's spouses and providing member organizations access to a highly skilled talent pool.

IDCN started in Switzerland in 2011 and has now over 100 corporate members around the world. There is also a growing number of local networks globally and Stockholm is next out. IDCN Stockholm starts in 2017 and is managed by Stockholm Academic Forum. Amongst the funding members in IDCN Stockholm are EY, Stockholm University, Sqore, Galderma, iZettle, and Stockholm Business Region.

By becoming a member of IDCN Stockholm you will get access to a global mobility support service for spouses, to a qualified talent pool and to an arena for awareness-making and development of local conditions for employers in need of attracting global talent. Last but not least you gain enhancement of the employee value proposition through becoming an even more dual career friendly organization.
